Tree roots grow during the winter months, so a tree will be in better condition for the next growing season if it is planted early in the dormant season.

Since help and farm equipment was not plentiful, our supply of nursery stock is limited. If you do not find listed everything you need, send us a list of your needs. We have small quantities of other nursery stock and we might be able to supply you. We hope to have a much larger supply next year.

Your orders will be given prompt and careful attention.

We especially recommend the New Elberta peach, Waite pear and Ellen Scott grape as exceptionally good fruits.
